

Feudi
del
Pisciotta

Sicily is precisely the region that the Greeks once called Enotria, because of its famous vocation for vine cultivation. Precisely for this reason, in recent years, thanks above all to the pioneering work of several great Sicilian entrepreneurial families and the Regional Institute of Vine and Wine, the island's wine production has undergone a true renaissance, both cultural and productive, with major investments focused on this land's capacity to produce world-class wines.

As part of the new Sicilian Renaissance movement, the Feudi del Pisciotta estate, the first Sicilian company of the DCC Group, brings its contribution complemented by the experience acquired by Castellare di Castellina and Rocca di Frassinello. The company is located in the south-east of Sicily, a few minutes...
